

useEffect

passing an empty array get executed when the component is created passing an array with data only when that data changes it'll run the function in useEffect (and the cleanup function too)

Return a function

React will run it when it is time to clean up it runs before the main useEffect function runs, but after the first render cycle

